Editorial Comments.

There have been 125 murders in Chicago's "Little Sicily" within the past 34 years.

The days are now getting shorter, but the sun is doing business at the same old stand.

Turkey has promised to satisfy Greece by letting the Greek refugees return, and pay them indemnity.

Carranza and Villa always harmonize by doing what Villa wants done. And it is well to remember that Villa is friendly to the United States.

A golf player in Washington who "cussed" President Wilson for almost hitting his head with a flying ball, has written an abject apology, which the President accepted.

The small boys of Hopkinsville are trying to find out who drained the public "swimming hole." They want to know whose fame is to rest on this display of human kindness.

Nine eggs in the establishment of Hulen-Tupes, a wholesale produce firm at Bowling Green, hatched on account of the intense heat, says a dispatch. The chicks are well developed.

Samuel Hirschberg, aged twelve, was killed while sitting in the bleachers watching two teams play baseball in Chicago, when a bat slipped from the hands of Dennis Flannigan and struck him on the head, fracturing his skull.

President Wilson has agreed to receive on June 30 a deputation of 700 women suffragists representing the organized clubwomen of the country, headed by Mrs. Harvey W. Wylie. They will press for his support the suffrage constitutional amendment.

Zacatecas was captured by Villa's forces at 6 p. m. Tuesday, according to the official report received at Juarez. The rebel loss is given at 2,200 killed and wounded. Two of Villa's generals are reported to have been wounded and one killed. Federal casualties are not given.

Tips to porters and waiters on trains and steamboats in interstate commerce would be prohibited by a bill introduced by Senator Works. At the same time, it would make it unlawful for an employer to pay such low wages that tips were necessary for the proper compensation of the employee.

Braving a street temperature of more than 105 degrees, one hundred and twelve German singing societies from various parts of the United States, with accompanying delegations, Wednesday participated in a parade that preceded the formal opening in Louisville of the thirty-fourth saengerfest of the North American Saengerbund.

"If you see a lot of mammoth trunks piled up at the stations," says the Henderson Gleaner, it is not Barnum's circus transporting its tents, but the college girls coming home for vacation." The impression must not be created that the trunks contain anything besides books and souvenirs. A small handbag would hold the average girl's clothes.

The City of Paterson, N. J., with much formality, buried a 30-foot hammer the other day as the first step to start a booster campaign. Hopkinsville appointed a Fool Killer to deal with the Town Knockers ten years ago and its prosperity dates from that time. People who do not like Hopkinsville have a standing invitation to shut up and get out.

Terms for composing the differences between the United States and Mexico have been concluded. The Washington Government authorized the signing of the Niagara Falls pact Wednesday night. It becomes effective when the new provisional government for Mexico has been established, and provides that the United States and Argentina, Brazil and Chile recognize the new government.

HUGE FAILURE IN DRY GOODS

Receivers For H. B. Clafin Company, Liabilities of Thirty Millions.

HAD NOTES IN MANY BANKS.

Receivers For H. B. Clafin Stores Maintained Over Country---Appeal Vain.

New York, June 26.—The biggest mercantile failure in the history of the United States was precipitated yesterday when receivers were appointed for H. B. Clafin company, of this city. The company, it is estimated, owes more than $30,000,000 which, at the present time, it is unable to pay. Its assets are said to be $44,000,000.

John Clafin, head of the company is the chief individual stockholder, in the dry goods enterprises throughout the country, which are involved in the failure. Receivers for several of these were named today, and similar action, it was announced, would be taken in the case of the remainder. Their business will be continued under receivers' management until their financial affairs have been adjusted.

From 3,000 to 5,000 banks in all parts of the United States compose the bulk of Clafin creditors. They hold notes aggregating the major part of the liabilities. These notes are said to have been issued by the various Clafin stores, endorsed by H. B. Clafin company and the proceeds used when discounted in financing their needs.

The Castner-Knott Dry Goods Co., Nashville, passed into the hands of a receiver Thursday, as a result. Assets $700,000, liabilities $427,865.

LIMITS KISS TO ONE YARD

Woman Movie Censor Orders The Prolonged Variety Cut Out.

Philadelphia, June 26.—Mrs. Cyra Niver, the only woman member of the new state moving picture censorship board, has decided that "one yard" is long enough for any kiss, after several weeks spent in passing upon thousands and thousands of yards of love drama films. The woman inspector has sat through yards and yards of kisses and her ultimatum after watching an embrace which occupied five yards of film was that four yards should be eliminated.

GABE LONG

Succeeds Henry Stites as Lieutenant of Co. D.

Gabe B. Long, who has been regimental color-bearer, was elected second lieutenant of Co. D. Thursday night, vice Lieutenant Henry J. Stites, resigned. The vacancy in the position of first lieutenant caused by the resignation of Sheriff Jewell W. Smith has not been filled.

Lieut. Long's selection will prove to be a very popular one. He is a son of the late E. B. Long, and is one of the most popular young men in the city, at present holding a responsible position with the Mogul Wagon Works.

Without Eyeballs.

Clarksville, Tenn., June 26.—A Jersey cow on the farm of Floyd Smith of this county has given birth to a female calf which was blind at birth and without eyeballs. The calf is now one week old and is seemingly normal otherwise.

FORD TOURING CAR AND TEN TRIPS TO MAMMOTH CAVE

To Be Awarded To Ladies of Hopkinsville and Vicinity By The Kentuckian On August 15---Probably The Opportunity Of A Life Time For Some One.

MOST LIBERAL OFFER EVER MADE BY HOPKINSVILLE PAPER.

Any Lady or Girl May Enter The Contest And Be Awarded An Automobile Or a Trip Without Cost---See Announcement On Other Page And Enter At Once.

In this issue the Kentuckian announces the most liberal subscription contest ever inaugurated by a newspaper of this section. The most liberal in point of number and quality of prizes offered, as well as conditions of the contest.

One Ford Touring car will be awarded the contestant receiving the highest number of votes, and any lady may enter the contest and win by her efforts alone. The contest closes Aug. 15, just seven weeks hence and more than $580 can be earned by some one in these few weeks. Think of what an opportunity this liberal offer affords you to secure a touring car without cost. All required is just a little effort and energy.

In addition to the Touring Car, ten ladies or girls will be awarded each a trip to Mammoth Cave. Mammoth Cave is one of the wonders of not only the United States, but the

PETER I OF SERBIA ABDICATES THRONE

Successor to King Alexander, Murdered Eleven Years Ago by Soldiers.

Belgrade, June 24.—King Peter I of Serbia was reported to-day to have abdicated the throne in favor of his second son, Prince Alexander.

The king left Belgrade in the afternoon for the baths at Vrnja in the southern part of Serbia, and a note issued by the official agency in announcing the king's departure did not say he had abdicated, but confined itself to the statement that his majesty had signed a ukase intrusting the government of Serbia during his absence from the capital to the crown prince, Alexander.

King Peter I, who is 70 years old, ascended the Serbian throne, June 15, 1903, after the murder of King Alexander.

At half past twelve on the night of June 10, about forty Serbian army officers entered the royal palace, burst open the apartments of King Alexander and Queen Draga, and shot their majesties dead. On the same occasion, several Serbian ministers were assassinated, and altogether fifty-four persons were killed or wounded.

The king, who has just abdicated, was in Geneva at the time, and he afterwards denied all knowledge of the conspiracy. His majesty, however, never caused the punishment of the conspirators, who retained their rank in the Serbian army.

King Peter, until his succession, led a very venturesome life. He studied in Switzerland and then went to the French military academy at St. Cyr. He participated in the Franco-German war as an officer of the foreign legion.

For many years he is said to have engaged in conspiracies against King Milan, of Serbia, but for forty-five years he himself never set foot on Serbian soil until he had been elected king by the Serbian parliament.

The new King Alexander was born on December 4, 1888. He has hitherto been very popular among the Servians. He was educated in St. Petersburg, and is of a studious and refined temperament.

world, and every year tourists from all over the world visit this cave. Travel hundreds of miles, at a large expense to see just what the Kentuckian is offering 10 ladies with ut cost. The party will be chaperoned by some one selected by one of the contestants and accompanied by a representative of the Kentuckian who will see that the trip is perfect in every respect. On another page is published all the details of the contest. Every lady who would like to possess a touring car or be one of the Mammoth Cave party is invited to send her name to the Contest Manager at once. Don't wait, as an early start will be to your advantage. There are so many awards that success will be certain if you enter the contest with the proper determination. Call 449 and let the contest manager know that you want to enter the contest, and subscription blanks will be furnished you at once.

WHEAT DROPS TWO CENTS

Further Decline to Lowest Price In Twelve Years.

In Chicago Thursday, wheat rallied after prices had fallen lower than any time since 1902, closing at 74 1/2 for July delivery.

The local price declined 2 cents yesterday, and offerings were brisk at 70 cents. The impression prevails that wheat will go lower yet. Threshing is still the order of the day. Seven threshes were seen in operation Thursday on the Clarksville pike alone. The crop is fine and is being sold rapidly. Those who sold at 75 cents are congratulating themselves. E. D. Jones sold 20,000 bushels at that price. The Nashville papers report the flour market declining and "staff of life" is sure to be cheaper than for many years.

It seems that the first decline in the prices of high living will be at the expense of the farmers, but President Wilson predicts a great revival of business all over the country, with money easy and living expenses greatly reduced.

HEAT WAVE

Continues And 104 Degrees Is The Register.

The intense heat continues and no relief is promised by the weather bureau at present. On Thursday the Government thermometer, in charge of weather observer, W. F. Randle, registered 104 degrees, the minimum being 70 degrees. The day before both the maximum and minimum were the same—104 and 70 degrees. On Tuesday the maximum was 100 degrees and minimum was 69 degrees. The 104 mark has been reached three times during the month, the mercury going up to that point June 11, also. It was still hotter yesterday.

DRYS START PETITIONS

Asking For a Vote on Prohibition In Christian County September 21.

UNDER THE NEW UNIT LAW.

Fights To Be Made In Many Other Counties On The Same Date.

At a meeting held Wednesday night by the dry forces, it was definitely decided to have an election in Christian county on Sept. 21, to prohibit the sale of liquor in the county. The election will be called under the new county unit law, which requires 25 per cent of the voters from the county at large to call an election.

The petition also asks that druggists be prohibited from selling liquors. There are now 25 saloons in the county, 23 in Hopkinsville and 2 in Gracey.

This is part of a general movement over the state and elections will be held at the same time in practically all of the wet counties, including Daviess, Henderson and McCracken, in this end of the state. Indications are that there will be a spirited contest in all of these counties. The petitions are to be circulated at once and the requisite number of names, it is expected, will be secured without any trouble.

Petitions for signatures have been placed at the drug stores of J. O. Cook, Anderson-Fowler Co., Averitt-Stowe Co., L. L. Elgin, Max J. Blythe and L. A. Johnson & Co., and at R. Leavell's stable and McCord Bros. grocery.

METEOR SEEN IN MORNING

Flashed Across The Sky At Three A. M. Thursday.

A brilliant meteor of great size passed through the sky from southwest to northeast Thursday morning at three o'clock.

Persons who saw it say that it made the night almost as light as day and left behind it a trail of light that remained for 20 to 30 minutes.

Lieut. W. D. Hawkins was one of those who saw it here. He says it grew lower as it approached the northeast and finally appeared to descend below the horizon.

W. E. Adcock, south of town, also saw it and says it was as large as a whisky barrel and left a great tail of light across the heavens which lasted for half an hour. There was also a rumbling sound.

Sam Robertson, of Flat Lick, saw about the same display. He said the meteor seemed to throw off small particles as it passed through the sky.

Dispatches report that the meteor was seen at Clarksville, Hartsville, McMinnville and Columbia, Tenn., and at Huntsville, Ala.

COUNTY LOSES GOOD CITIZEN

Edwin W. Steger, Prominent Farmer, Victim of "Heart Failure," Aged 73.

SHOCKING IN ITS SUDDENNESS

Death Came Without Warning At 4 o'clock A. M. Thursday.

Mr. Edwin W. Steger, one of Christian county's most prominent and substantial citizens, died unexpectedly at his home near Oak Grove, Thursday morning. He had not been feeling very well, but had been up and about as usual the day before and had ridden his horse about over the farm a part of the day. He awoke at four o'clock and complained of the heat and changed his position in the bed. Mrs. Steger heard him gasp and rushed to him and found him in a dying condition, of heart failure.

He was a son of Wm. M. Steger, of Buckingham county, Va., who came to Christian county in 1833 and died in 1877. Mr. Steger was born in this county Feb. 22, 1841. He was educated in the schools of Christian county and served in the Confederate army during the entire war, as a gallant soldier of the Lost Cause. He became a first sergeant in the regiment of Col. Thos. G. Woodward, serving in the companies of Capt. Darwin Bell and Capt. Elliott.

He was twice married. In 1868 he married Miss Sallie E. Glover, of Trigg county, who died five years later, leaving three sons, Ernest W., Edwin T. and James Steger. About 20 years ago he was married to Miss Mollie Buckner, who survives him. One daughter of this union also survives him, Miss Louise Steger.

Mr. Steger was a lifelong member of Locust Grove Baptist church, a deacon for 42 years and for 40 years church clerk. He was a devout and consistent christian and no man in the county stood higher in the community in which he lived and died.

He was a member of the Masonic and Knights of Pythias orders and had long been prominent in the affairs of the Democratic party.

Funeral services were held yesterday morning at nine o'clock, at Locust Grove church by his pastor, Rev. H. E. Gabby. The interment followed later in the day at Riverside Cemetery.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Edward B. Courtney Ends His Life At Evansville.

E. B. Courtney, 34 years old, a traveling salesman, of Beaver Dam, Ky., shot himself in the temple while standing before the glass in his room at the Acme Hotel, in Evansville, Wednesday, and lingered for two hours at a hospital to which he was removed. He left a note asking the hotel management to notify his wife at Beaver Dam and his brother at Hopkinsville, Ky.

It is believed Mr. Courtney was affected by the intense heat and became temporarily insane.

His wife happened to be visiting here, in the family of her brother, J. E. Bouldin, on North Main street, and received the shocking news in this city. His brother, referred to, is G. C. Courtney.

Mr. Courtney was engaged in the livery business and later in insurance before he left here about four years ago. The body was brought here for interment, arriving on the Dixie Flyer Thursday.

A FUTURIST FIASCO

Date—A. D. 1925.

By VIOLET CASTLETON.

"Pauline," said Lady Letitia, "I wish to be blue tonight."

"Yes, m'lady," acquiesced the maid.

"Blue," repeated the Lady Letitia, "blue face, blue ears; and, Pauline—"

"What color shall I have for hair and eyebrows?"

"It is as m'lady wishes."

"I know it is." The Lady Letitia meditated. "Old gold," she decided suddenly. "Pauline, you'll find the new bottle of eyebrow gold in the cupboard there."

"Yes, m'lady."

"I shall wear the cerise dress with the silver trimmings. It will be most effective."

"What color will your ladyship's shoes be?" inquired Pauline.

"Oh, I think I'll wear the new pair, you know—one tangerine and the other black-and-white. They are very smart, and will clash beautifully with the cerise and silver."

"Yes, m'lady."

"That's right, Pauline, only don't put it on too thick, will you? You nearly got some blue in my eye then.
Now the other side."

She picked up the diamond-studded hand mirror and surveyed the effect.

"You've certainly put it on becomingly, Pauline. Now just go to the hair-shelf and see what the old-gold wig looks like."

"Too subdued," said the Lady Letitia. "I think it will have to be the green one, after all."

Pauline brought it.

"Why, Pauline, what has happened to the violet curl which used to be at the back?"

"M'lady, it is no longer there!"

"I've just said so. What nuisance!
It ruins the effect, its having gone.
No; I shall have to fall back on that wretched gold one, and it's the one his lordship likes least. He is taking me out tonight."

The Lady Letitia allowed the old-gold wig to be arranged, patting the three scarlet streaks in it tenderly.

"It's really rather a blessing," she mused, "that Bertie is old-fashioned and doesn't like my changing my hair often. It's so much cheaper, and it's a splendid excuse to be able to make to people about my only having five sets of hair. Barbara Bilberry has eighteen sets, and that wretch of a husband she's got won't raise her hair allowance and is continually grumbling for all that. Yes, it is a blessing about Bertie, though of course I must not let him think so! Why, I couldn't let anyone see my own hair now. It would look quite uncanny!"

The last touches had been given by Pauline's clever hand, and the Lady Letitia surveyed herself in the glass once more.

"Please have Lord Herbert informed that I am ready," she said.
"I suppose he has arrived to fetch me? The spotted monoplane tonight, please—the striped one has been out twice today."

"Yes, m'lady," said Pauline.

"I wonder," the Lady Letitia continued to muse, as she floated down the marble staircase, "what on earth
it would cost if men took to transforming themselves too? Five sets of hair at 75 guineas each, why—O, I can't do it in my head, and I haven't dared to look at the last bill!
And I shall have to order a few more soon. Then the face-dyes. Eight guineas a bottle is pretty stiff, considering there's only enough for twice; and then all the other—"

She swooned suddenly, in absolute silence; the Lady Letitia had never been known to scream.

At the foot of the stairs waited her affianced husband, Lord Bertie Bob-church. He wore an ordinary evening suit, but each trouser leg was split, exposing to view emerald silk socks. Instead of the orthodox shirt and collar, he wore a fichu of tucked net.

But it was his face which had finished the Lady Letitia.

One-half was painted slate-gray,
the better to accentuate the other half, which wore a covering of pale lemon-yellow.

He picked up a priceless vase containing a dozen or so striped roses at two guineas each, and poured water over the face of the Lady Letitia.

"Damn!" said her father, the earl of Duckerborough, coming into the hall at this moment. "Can't you see the blue's all running on to the new carpet?"

"She fainted," explained Lord
Bertie.

"Can't help that," said the earl;
"I haven't paid for the carpet yet.
Just take her face off it, will you?"

He looked up suddenly and caught sight of the visage of his future son-in-law; the next moment he, too, lay unconscious on the floor.

"Go and wash your face, Bertie," commanded the Lady Letitia, coming to with unexpected suddenness.

"I'm hanged if I do till you've washed yours," said Bertie politely.
"Come on—let's see who can get it off first."

"I don't feel well," said the earl of Duckerborough, sitting up presently.
A girl with a pigtail leant tenderly over him.

"And who the dickens are you?"
he inquired, and then decided that he would give her the glad eye.

"I'm your daughter," replied the girl, a touch of wistfulness in her tone.

"O, sorry!" said the earl, getting rather a shock. "Very sorry; but you could hardly expect me to know it, could you, considering I haven't seen your face for six years?"

"The aeroplane is at the door, m'lord," said the butler. "Am I to have the Lady Letitia informed?"

"All right, Green," said the girl in the pigtail; "tell it to wait."

The butler started, then reeled speechless from the hall.

"It was positive indecent," he said in the servants' hall afterward, "and me what's always been in respectable families. Expecting me to look at her bare face at her age!"

"We shall be late," said Bertie, "if we don't start soon."

The Lady Letitia looked rather depressed. "I'll run up and ask Pauline if she knows how to do hair," she said—then, suspiciously,
"on condition, Bertie, that you don't do anything more to your face."

"Of course," said Bertie; "that's a bargain. But if you put on any of that hair, I swear I'll paint it blue and orange, and—O, I say, Letitia, you might send down some one to sew up my trousers, will you?"

"I will lend you a pair," said the earl. "They will be on the large side, but—"

Seven separate shrieks from the landing above sent the two men rushing up the marble staircase. When they had jumped the seven prostrate bodies belonging to the younger sisters and brothers of the Lady Letitia they found her, hair brush in hand, standing dejectedly before her looking glass.

"It's no good," she said mournfully, "I shan't be able to dine, Bertie. Pauline says she has not done up anyone's hair for nearly ten years. You'll have to get me one of the wigs from that shelf—"

"If you ever wear hair other than your own," said Bertie, "you may consider yourself no longer engaged to me."

"Letitia," said her father, "your little sisters and brothers are prostrate in the passage—"

"Can't help it," said Lady Letitia.
"They'll just have to get used to my face—and my hair, too, as Bertie says I am not to wear wigs."

"Pardon, m'lady," said Pauline,
"but I wish to give a month's notice.
It is too much to expect me to arrange your ladyship's hair!" She burst into a torrent of sobs.

"Bertie," said Lady Letitia,
"fetch me a glass of water."

From a ruby topped bottle she took some white powder; when Bertie's and the earl's backs were turned she placed it on her tongue; then she swallowed the water.

"Father," she said calmly, "bear witness that what Bertie has done, he has done in ignorance. The water
he has just brought me to drink was to enable me to swallow the poison I have always made a point of having close at hand. No; do not interrupt me. Every woman of fashion has some close by her, in case she should decide, as I have decided . . . that the future is too difficult to face." She turned green suddenly, and died.

"And to think," said Pauline afterward in the servants' hall, "that after all the money that was spent,
and the time that I wasted, that her ladyship turned the very shade she most admired with so little difficulty!"

Turning to the column in the Future headed "Situations Vacant," she wiped away a tear, and marked several likely-looking advertisements with a pencil.—London

Stopped Those Pains

Copper Hill, Va.—Mrs. Ida Conner, of this place, says: "For years, I had a pain my right side, and was very sick with womanly troubles. I tried different doctors but could get no relief. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I took Cardui, and it relieved the pain in my side, and now I feel like a new person. It is a wonderful medicine." Many women are completely worn out and discouraged on account of some womanly trouble. Are you? Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Its record shows that it will help you. Why wait? Try it to-day. Ask your druggist about it.

Pains All Over.

Houston, Tex.—"For five years," says Mrs. L. Fulenhek, of this place, "I suffered with pains, all over, especially in my back and side, and was so weak I could do my housework. A friend told me of Cardui. Since taking it, I feel so much better! Now I can do my housework and pains don't bother me any more at all." Cardui is a strength-building medicine. Fifty years of success have produced amongst its many users, confidence in Cardui and what it will do. During this time, Cardui has relieved the female ailments of a million women. Why not yours? Try it to-day. Your druggist sells it. Advertisement.

Determination Wins.

Men foreordained to be great are the men who make circumstances. They never wait for them. They walk in the path no man has been out. They build their own road. Even fate will stand back when she meets the man who laughs at her frown. Determination will conquer. It must. Force is the lever which moves the world. "I will" can make the very mountains come unto you.—New York Weekly.

A TEXAS WONDER.

The Texas Wonder cures kidney and bladder troubles, dissolves gravel, cures diabetes, weak and lame backs, rheumatism, and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in both men and women. Regulates bladder troubles in children. If not sold by your druggist, will be sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. One small bottle is two months' treatment, and seldom fails to perfect a cure. Send for testimonials from this and other states. Dr. E. W. Hall, 2926 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo. Send by druggists. Advertisement.

Diamonds Worth $5,000,000,000.

The production of diamonds from the earliest times to the present day amounts to over 28 tons, or over $1,000,000,000 in value, uncut. Their value cut and mounted is almost $5,000,000,000. A box three feet high, six feet wide and eight feet long would contain them. Nearly all diamonds of the present day come from South Africa.

Among the forgotten dishes of the past was the "black broth" of Lacedaemon. "What the ingredients of this sabbie composition were," says a writer, "we cannot exactly ascertain. Doctor Lister (in 'Apicius') supposed it to have been hog's blood. . . . It could not be a very alluring mess, since a citizen of Sybaris, having tasted it, declared it was no longer a matter of astonishment with him why the Spartans were so fearless of death, since any one in his senses would much rather die than exist on such execrable food."

NIGHT'S SLEEP "IN STAGES"

Hotel Dweller Required Beds That Would Ordinarily Accommodate Four Common Mortals.

A good patron left the Manhattan yesterday—good because he occupied more beds than three average travelers that come to a New York hotel. He had two single and one double room, connecting. He managed to sleep in each of the four beds every night.

He insisted upon having linen sheets for every bed, saying that they were cooler than cotton. There were four windows in the three rooms, and a bed stood by each. The visitor said that in order to fall asleep he had to lie in a cool bed, and that the moment it became warm he awoke. Each bed was turned down all the way, and each window was opened when the chambermaid made up the rooms.

When he started in his nightly journey the traveler would first tackle bed No. 1, and go from one to the other until he had occupied all four. Then the first bed having got nicely cooled off by the time he had finished his fourth sleep, he would crawl back into it for another nap in his peripatetic slumbers.—New York Times.

MONOGAMY THE IDEAL STATE

Relations of the Lower Animals Serve to Prove That Polygamy Leads to Deterioration.

Marriage, it appears, is almost universal in the animal world. Bachelors and spinsters are rare, yet after the brief period of mourning is over the bereaved animal has little difficulty in finding a new mate.

Perhaps the most interesting point in regard to this subject is that the lower animals, like men, often have proved that monogamy is the ideal married state. A polygamous race increases faster for a time, and produces offspring of apparently unusual intelligence and development, but it is a notable fact that deer, which are most polygamous, are lowest down in the scale of development and are most seriously scourged by epidemic plagues.

The great objection to polygamy in animals is that only one parent—the weaker—has the care of the offspring, and that at the death of the father serious trouble often occurs among the survivors.—Exchange.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS.

What surely must be one of the most remarkable government publications on record has just been solemnly issued in France. Adorned with a pale yellow cover, it deals with a certain military matter and its title is "Administration et combatabilité des corps de troupe. Service de l'habillement." What makes this book undoubtedly unique, however, is that the whole of the text, which deals with an alteration in the price of zouave's underwear, contains not quite five times as many words as the title.

And the sixty-odd words, relating to an exceedingly trivial matter, are considered full justification for the issue of a government publication, neatly bound and stitched, with numbered pages and an orthodox title page.

It seems much ado about exceedingly little.

FAMOUS OLD MEXICAN CITY

Oaxaca Interesting Because of Proximity to Ruins of Abiding Places of Former Peoples.

Oaxaca and its suburbs has an elevation of 5,069 feet above sea level, population 40,000. The city was founded in 1486 and was called Huaxyacac, afterwards softened into Oaxaca by the Spaniards, who first went there in 1521. Oaxaca is an extremely pretty city, well supplied with parks and gardens, and situated at just the right altitude to be neither extremely hot nor cold.

The famous ruins of Monte Alban are within four miles of Oaxaca. These ruins are placed among the most notable of the sort in the world, and are held by competent authorities to be at least 2,000 years old. The mountain on which they are situated is literally covered with remains of temples, sepulchers, platforms, open squares and other ruins, said to bear a great resemblance to those found in Egypt.

At Mitla, 25 miles southeast of Oaxaca, the ruins are of still more surpassing interest and beauty.

GOT EVEN WITH THE TELLER

Bank Customers Waited in Growling Line While Lawyer Tested Change Given Him.

Those who were in the corridors of a certain large downtown bank one day last week might have observed a little comedy of high finance. One of the most noted lawyers in the country, an aged man, entered the door and walked to the paying teller's wicket. From his pocket he extracted a gold eagle, and bade the teller give him change for the coin.

The teller reached impatiently for the gold piece and then rang it ostentatiously on the marble slab before him to test its genuineness. The eminent lawyer started and his face grew red. But he did not engage in vain words.

"Give me the change in silver quarters, young man," he said.

And then, while the waiting line behind him grew longer and longer, the lawyer coolly rang and re-rang each one of the forty pieces of silver, an irritating chink-chink, upon the marble slab at the teller's window.—New York Post.

FRENCH VILLAGE DOOMED.

The little village of Noailhac, France, built under the sheltering wing of the ancient castle of the dukes of Noailles, is threatened with extinction. Already a neighboring hamlet a little higher up the mountain side on which it is perched has been wiped out. "It is the will of God," the villagers say, and know that no mortal means can save their home place from ruin. For the mountain that hangs over Noailhac is moving onwards, and as it progresses on its journey the paltry erections of man in its path are swept aside as if built of straw and paper.

Asked for Information.

The adult joke about "Keep still, can't you? The holy grail has just died," is matched by the anecdote of the two newsboys watching the "Quo Vadis" pictures. "Please, mister," one of them asked of a good-natured man who sat near. "Which guy is Quo Vadis?"

Why "Blackballed."

The ancient Greeks used marked shells for voting, and from the Greek word ostrakon comes the English word ostracize, that is, to shut out by one unfavorable shell. "Blackballed" means the same thing, once upon a time white and black balls being used for secret voting.

President Bassett, has passed on the game protested so far this season. The game played at Cairo by Hopkinsville recently, which Cairo won, was awarded to Hopkinsville, on their contention that an agreement was made when game started to call it at a certain time, but Cairo forced them to play out the full nine innings. Had the game been called as agreed, Hopkinsville would have won.

A game with Clarksville protested by Owensboro because a runner was allowed to score on a batted ball which struck the umpire, was ordered to be played over. The same decision was rendered as to the game last week between Cairo and Owensboro, in which Owensboro charged the balls were rubbed with pepper, mustard or something of the kind which prevented Pitcher Grogan from using his spit-ball.

In the last game with Cairo here Wednesday the game went fourteen innings, Cairo winning 9 to 8. Hopkinsville got a five-run lead early, but lost it through costly errors. Score: R. H. E. Hopkinsville..... 8 11 5 Cairo..... 9 16 3 Batteries—Trimmer and Dayton; Grogan and McCann

Four Set Free.

President Wilson has commuted, to expire at once, the sentences imposed on Michael J. H. Hanson, of Scranton, Pa., Frank H. Painter, of Omaha, Neb., Fred J. Mooney, of Duluth, Minn., and William J. Shupe of Chicago, all convicted in the "dynamite conspiracy" cases. The other twenty defendants, including the leaders, must begin serving their sentences in Leavenworth penitentiary. Clemency for John H. Barry and Paul J. Morris, both of St. Louis, was withheld while they have opportunity to submit separate petitions. The four men whose sentences were commuted had a minor part in the conspiracy, the government charges.

Stanley Strong in

Warren County.

Thomas W. Thomas, the well known Bowling Green attorney and democratic leader of the Third district, was in Louisville yesterday. He has been in the forefront of many hard fought political battles in the "Bloody Third," and has rarely been on the vanquished side. Mr. Thomas is a strong supporter of Stanley for senator, and he has lined up a strong following for the Henderson man. As an orator, Mr. Thomas has a reputation all over his section of the state. Commission Government.

Discussing commission government the Chicago Herald says:

"From a financial point of view, commission rule seems to have worked well. The per capita cost of administration under it is distinctly low—lower than the average figure for the entire 195 cities studied. Of course, if commission rule were not more economical than the form displaced by it the strongest motive for adopting it would disappear. It is the cost, the waste, the irresponsibility of the governments of so many American cities that are leading the people to scrap the old machinery and substitute simpler and more modern administration machinery.

"There are no complete, reliable data as to the alleged reaction against commission rule and reversion to the mayor-and-council form. Talk about such a reaction has been heard on public occasions, but intelligent observers are disposed to believe that what it amounts to is simply this—that where the voters have lost interest in the reform, commission rule has deteriorated and given rise to abuses of its operation. After all, no reform is automatic. Good administration cannot be secured once for all. Even if new machinery is installed, the body of electors must watch it and see that the right men are placed in charge of the improved machinery."

SPEEDY ACTION URGED ON U. S. "MOVIE" BILL

House Committee Receives Flood of Letters Approving Measure For Censorship.

Washington.—A flood of letters from all parts of the country is pouring in upon the committee on education of the House asking that action be taken at the earliest possible date upon the bill introduced by Representative Hughes, of Georgia, providing for a national censorship of moving pictures. The bill provides for a board of five censors, who are to pass upon films and to license them if they are found worthy.

Following are the provisions which prescribe the duty of this board:

"The commission shall license every film submitted to it and intended for entrance into interstate commerce unless it finds that such film is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or depicts a bull fight or is of such character that its exhibition would tend to impair the health or corrupt the morals of children or adults or incite to crime. The commission may license any film, subject to such excisions, amplifications or alterations as the committee may direct and require to be made. The commission may, by unanimous vote, withdraw any license at any time for cause shown."

To Protect Children.

"There are 9,000,000 children in the United States going to moving picture shows every day, and they must be protected," said Representative Hughes. There is a self-constituted national board of censors in New York, but it has absolutely no authority, and the worst films never are submitted to it. There can be no doubt about the tremendous effect which these films have upon the minds of young people, and a rigorous censorship is of the utmost importance."

Philanthropic associations in all parts of the country are urging the passage of the bill. Their attitude is typically shown in the following extract from a letter written to the committee by Howard Teasdale, chairman of the Wisconsin legislative committee to investigate the white slave traffic:

"Many of the pictures are not only immoral," he writes "and strongly suggestive, but they practically represent what has heretofore been represented by the dime novel."

"We all admit that the moving picture is a wonderful educator, but we insist that it must be for the moral uplift of the community, and especially so when it appeals most strongly and has the greatest number of patrons among the very young."

Chicago Board Ridiculed.

The Springfield, Ill., Evangelical Ministerial Association and the Ohio

Congress of Mothers also have recently written urging the passage of federal legislation on the subject. The committee has held two series of hearings on the bill and both of these have brought out the fact that there is no efficient censorship of the "movies." The board of censors of Chicago was ridiculed before the committee for having prohibited the exhibition of a film of the "Merchant of Venice" on the ground that it was anti-semitic.

There are three elements in the moving picture industry, all of which must be controlled, according to members of the committee. They are the exhibitors, the exchanges and manufacturers. Of the three, the exchanges are by far the most powerful. Two of the three principal exchanges already have stated that they are opposed to a federal censorship.

Most of the exhibitors are in favor of the proposed board of censors. Their chief desire, as expressed to the committee, is to be protected in the quality of the films sent to them. The manufacturers of films have not yet been heard from.

Three Trigg Items.

John Hille, a plumber of Hopkinsville, has been here for the past several days superintending the laying of a new six-inch main for the Cadiz Water Co. from W. B. Woodruff's corner to the new mill, from which place the water will be pumped as soon as this line is completed. Mr. Hille is accompanied by his wife, and they are staying with Mrs. Julia Cunningham.

Luther Hancock, a young man of the southern part of this county, who was indicted by the recent grand jury upon the charge of carnally knowing a female under sixteen years of age, but who has been at large, was arrested last Thursday night near Clarksville.

Lynn Litchfield and little son, who live near Hurricane church, about eight miles west of here, were bitten by a dog last week that was thought to have had hydrophobia. The dog was killed and his brains have been sent away to be examined, while Mr. Litchfield and little son went to Bowling Green several days ago to have a madstone applied to their wounds.—Jadix Record.

McCarn Indicted.

Jeff McCarn, United States attorney for Honolulu, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of assaulting Claudius McBride, an attorney, with a deadly weapon. McCarn and McBride quarreled over the legal aspects of a case in the federal court. McCarn formerly lived at Nashville, Tenn.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 27.

Young Man Who Came East to Grow Up With Hopkinsville.

In the rapid growth of Greater Hopkinsville, Horace Greeley's advice "Go West, young man, and grow up with the country," has not always been taken. At least one young westerner has come east to grow up with Hopkinsville. Thomas J. Baugh, who furnishes the current for the Baugh Electric Co., was born in the

T. J. BAUGH.

Lone Star State, but is now a typical Hopkinsville booster. He discovered the State of Texas in Lavaca county, May 22, 1880, near the town of Moulton. In 1888 he started to wards Hopkinsville, bringing his parents with him, and got as far as Franklin, Tenn., and stopped there for eleven years. He grew up in the town of Franklin and in 1896 got his first job as a messenger boy and drifted into the telephone business. He came to Hopkinsville in 1899 to work for the Cumberland Telephone Co., and has been in the same business practically ever since. He advanced to the position of wire chief, which he held for 8 years and then changed to the Home Telephone Co. for 3 years, in the same capacity. All of this time he was gaining a practical insight into the electrical business from the ground up and a year ago decided to go into business for himself, handling electrical supplies in a small way. He found a ready opening and was soon forced to find larger quarters for his rapidly growing business. From an upstairs room he moved to the present handsome storeroom in the Cooper Building, where he is acceptably serving the public. His company wires houses, installs fixtures and deals in electrical supplies of all kinds, including motors, fans, electric tools and fixtures of every kind.

Mr. Baugh is quiet and unassuming, but he knows his business and knows how to please his customers. He is making a place for himself in busy Hopkinsville.

He was married in 1901 to a daughter of Capt. McJ. Davis, and they have one child.

Mr. Baugh is a member of the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association and is enterprising and progressive and thoroughly identified with Hopkinsville's interests.

Pitcher Turns Catcher.

Walter Johnson, hero of the baseball fans of Washington, and Miss Hazel Roberts, one of the prettiest girls in the Congressional set and the only daughter of Representative and Mrs. E. E. Roberts, of Carson City, Nev., married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding is a culmination of a romance which began on the big ball diamond a year ago when Johnson and the girl were introduced by her father, who is an enthusiastic fan.

The honeymoon will be postponed until after the ball season.

Danvers Cannot Be Cured

and is not cured, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure it, and that is by the use of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running, sound or impaired hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh (caused by colds) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars to Dr. J. C. HOOE, Ticket Agt. Hopkinsville.

LITTLE THINGS IN BUSINESS

In Many Ways They Have an Importance That at First Seems Out of Proportion.

A seemingly insignificant word is "Detail," but have you ever stopped to consider that success is dependent on it in a large measure or that failure may be the outcome, if you neglect the most trivial detail?

Competition today is so keen that the alert and energetic business man will make it a point to see that the smallest and seemingly unimportant part of his business has the same care and attention as the most important parts, for it is the looking after these little things that assists in materially increasing your business and putting it on a higher plane.

We are prone to attach little significance to letter writing, and still have you ever realized that your letter is a true index to your business methods, and that carefulness in writing is essential, for the impression it conveys is very important?

The receiving of complaints and the adjusting of them is another especial detail. How many future sales are assured by proper adjustment of some wrong, whether real or fancied, and, too, consider the good impression you have helped to promote.

If we were to attempt to enumerate all the trifles there still would be some missing when we got through, for the little things that need your attention are so varied and happening so unexpectedly they necessitate constant watching.

CLUNG TO HER MORTAL LIFE

Little Thing Like Having Head Cut Off Apparently Did Not Worry California Hen.

A headless hen that, for 12 hours after she was decapitated, walked around the corral like any other chicken, has been worrying Ephraim Tucker, a local stationery merchant, residing at 405 Eureka street, according to a Redlands (Cal.) dispatch to the New York Herald. The hen had been suffering several days from what is known as the gapes. She became so sickly that after a conference with his wife Tucker decided to cut the hen's head off and end her misery.

When he performed the operation the wound did not bleed. Instead of fluttering to the ground the hen walked off a few feet and stood still. Tucker was puzzled.

When he returned at 11 o'clock he went back to the corral with a lantern. The hen was still standing, and in addition had laid an egg.

Next morning the merchant went to the chicken yard once more. The headless hen had moved 20 feet, but was apparently as full of life as any of the other chickens.

Tucker could stand it no longer. He seized the hen and with the hatchet cut off what was left of its neck. This time the hen fluttered and died.

A Century Ago.

Mortimer M. Jackson, a distinguished jurist, was born 100 years ago, March 6, in Rensselaerville, N. Y. At the age of twenty-four he moved to Milwaukee, where he engaged in the practice of law. He was a member of the Territorial convention of 1840, and helped to organize the Whig party in the territory and to oppose the extension of slavery. He was attorney general of the territory for five years and one of the first circuit court judges of the state of Wisconsin. In 1857 he was the defeated Republican candidate for United States senator. In 1861 President Lincoln appointed him United States Consul at Halifax, where during the Civil war he rendered the country valuable service. In 1882, after more than 20 years in the consular service, Mr. Jackson returned to his home in Madison, Wis., where he died in 1889.

Measuring Man's Worth.

Dr. Katherine M. H. Blackford told the Efficiency society at its annual meeting some of the ways of measuring man's worth almost as accurately as though his moral and mental qualities could be placed upon the scales. All that the man doing the measuring has to do is to keep tab on something like 54 characteristics and qualifications. "One must be very careful not to make mistakes," Doctor Blackford admitted. "There was a foreman once who expressed dissatisfaction with the methods. He showed his tables. The group of workmen under him measured up: Cheerfulness, 100 per cent.; accuracy, orderliness, 100 per cent. Then, asked his employer, 'what's the matter?' 'Aw,' said the foreman, 'they're so darned gloomy!'"

Strathcona's Big Banquet.

It was the late Lord Strathcona, chancellor of the University of Aberdeen, who was the presiding genius of the quartercentenary celebrations in 1906. He gave the gargantuan banquet to about three thousand graduates and undergraduates. He built a hall specially for the dinner, and brought all the materials, together with 700 waiters to serve them, from London, in three special trains. The organization was perfect, and the colossal arrangements moved without confusion or hitch.

Preserving a Memento.

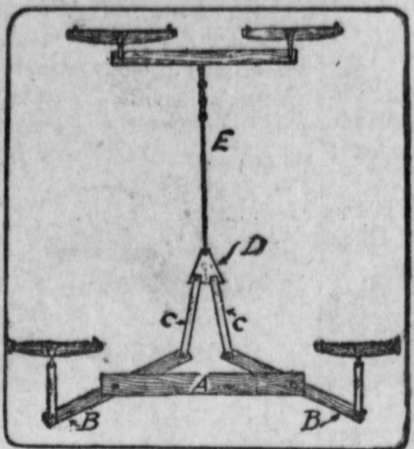

"So this is the house where Gen. George Washington made his headquarters!" said the stranger as, he gazed at the inscription.

"No, boss," replied Mr. Erastus Pinkly. "Tain't exactly de place. De house where de sign used to be was tore down, so we had to move it."

GOOD HITCH FOR TWO TEAMS

One Shown in Illustration Has Been in Service Twelve Years and Proven Satisfactory.

This sketch shows my four-horse evener, which I find hard to beat. I have used it for twelve years and it has proven particularly satisfactory for a wagon, as both teams must pull their portions, writes Ed Kraus of Hays, Kan., in Farmers' Mail and Breeze. However the evener may be used anywhere that a lead team is needed. To make it, take two pieces of iron 2 feet long and 2 1/2 inches wide and drill two 3/4-inch holes 22 inches apart through both pieces. Drill another through the center for the wrench bolt. These two pieces are marked A in the drawing. The pieces BB work between them. Use heavy washers on either side of the pieces B

Four-Horse Evener.

so as to make them work freely back and forth. Each piece B is 18 inches long with the outside holes 16 inches apart, and a hole in the center of each. The four pieces are CC, about 10 inches long, with holes drilled in each end, then riveted to D at one end and BB at the other, one above and one below. These pieces are strapiron 1 1/2 inches wide and 1/4 inch thick. D is a triangular plate about 3/4 inch thick and the holes are about 3 inches apart. Use a 1/2-inch rod with link for the lead team.

RAPE PASTURAGE FOR SWINE

Dwarf Essex is Only Variety Suitable for Hogs—One of Best Emergency Forage Crops.

The grower of rape should insist on getting the Dwarf Essex, as this is the only variety that is suitable for hog pasture. There is a summer or bird seed rape found on the market which makes a worthless pasture and should not be used.

I have used rape for several years as pasture for both breeding and fattening hogs and never experienced any difficulty in getting them to eat it, writes Turner Wright in Farmers Mail and Breeze.

If hogs that are not accustomed to rape are given no other green feed for a few days they will soon learn to eat and relish it even though they are fed a liberal amount of grain. It often happens that hogs, after learning to eat rape, prefer it to clover or alfalfa that is coarse and woody. I have often changed hogs from alfalfa to rape and from rape to alfalfa and could see no difference in the way they seemed to relish these different feeds. If the hogs are turned on the rape that will eat it more readily than if it is more mature.

Rape is one of the best emergency forage crops we have. A good rape pasture will give practically as good results as alfalfa. It can be sown in feed yards and lots that are used through the winter and thus not only furnish a pasture to take the place of a shortage of alfalfa or clover pasture but also provide a means of utilizing ground that would otherwise grow a crop of unsightly and worth less weeds.

SILAGE GOOD FOR POULTRY

Of Material Assistance in Keeping Up Egg Production—Fowls Are Crazy for Succulence.

Cows and sheep thrive on silage; it is a little too bulky for hogs to eat a great deal; horses and mules eat small amounts with profit, and a writer to Hoard's Dairyman tells that it is the best ever for poultry. He states: "We have tried it for two years and find the birds are crazy for it and will clean up all given them. Of course, we give a grain ration, oyster shells, grit, etc., besides the ensilage." Since poultry require some green food in order to do very well and lay best when they enjoy their food best, it can be seen that ensilage will help a great deal to keep the egg production up to the standard, as well as stimulating the milk flow of dairy cows or putting beef on steers and mutton on sheep.

Nitrate of Soda.

One of my neighbors lost a good cow because she ate a quantity of nitrate of soda. Last summer he left his barn door open and nearly lost a horse, but someone saw it in time and dosed the animal. It was a close call, for the horse was more than a week getting over the trouble, says a writer in an exchange. This suggests that it is easier to prevent such things than it is to cure them.

Yards for Growing Chicks.

If necessary to keep growing chickens in yards, make the yards so that they can be moved to a fresh piece of ground as often as is necessary to furnish a clean, sweet, grassy spot.

ATTENTION TO CHICKS

WARM BROODER AND PROPER RA-TION ARE ESSENTIAL.

Eggs Should Be From Carefully Selected Stock, Well Fed and Housed to Produce Sturdy Stock—What to Feed.

(By DR. SANBORN, Holden, Mass. Copyright, 1914.)

There is less fuss in rearing of chicks than a few years ago. A warm brooder, some fine litter, cracked grain and grit, with perhaps a mash containing ground grain and animal food, and you should raise 90 per cent of the chicks.

Every chick deserves to be well hatched, of sturdy ancestry and properly reared. The eggs should be from carefully selected stock, well housed and fed, to produce chicks that stand adverse conditions. The hen or incubator should do its part well, as many a slip is made between the laying of the egg and the hatching of the chick.
I prefer the lamp heated brooder to either the hen or the heatless brooder, for while some hens do good brooding and in some seasons you can raise good chicks with the fireless brooder, yet for easy, successful brooding of 50 chicks my preference is for the heated brooder.

The chicks, when dry, are taken from the hen or machine and transferred to the well warmed brooder. I prefer it should be fully as warm under the hover as was the incubator, then, if too hot, the chicks can be spread out into the less warm part of the brooder floor, or if at any hour the temperature drops the chicks can retire to a warmer place under the hover.

What to Feed Them.

At the start the chicks get cool water to drink and only the food that is in the barn waste is used to cover the brooder floor. Really they need no food, and what they find in the waste is plenty. When a few days old they need light feeding of cracked wheat, good fish or beef scrap (personally I have found nothing better than a good grade of fish scrap) added at eight days of age and finely cracked, dry corn at ten to twelve days. It is important that all chick feed be sound, sweet and clean. Avoid musty corn, scrap that is fit only for fertilizer, and stale drinking water. Unless there is some grit in the barn waste that is used for brooder floor it should be supplied. Chicks need a warm place to retire to when cold, an open room to get out into and exercise, as well as a grass run to range over when two weeks old. Close confinement to hot brooders tends to give leg weakness. As the chicks grow in age the heat of the brooder can be reduced to about 80 degrees. Too many chicks are hatched that are doomed to die because from weak stock or incubated wrongly, but the blame is usually laid on the brooder.
Yearling hens make the best of breeders.

OVERFLOW FOR BARREL-TANK

Pipe Can Be Removed if Desired and Water Level Changed by Taking Out One of Corks.

Deeming it unnecessary to add an overflow to a barrel section which I had fitted up for a tank and not caring to remove any of the attached pipes, I slipped a piece of rubber tubing over the end of a piece of pipe so as to make a water-tight fit, and inserted it in the outlet in the manner

Detachable Overflow.

shown, writes James M. Kane of Doylestown, Pa., in Popular Mechanics.
Holes were drilled in the pipe at intervals and plugged with corks. The water can be made to overflow at any height by removing a cork in the pipe at that level. The rubber tubing can be discarded and the pipe threaded to fit into the waste nut at the bottom

Red Raspberries.

Red raspberries should not be nipped, but should be pruned back from two and one-half to three and one-half feet before growth starts in the spring. Of course, the old, dead canes must be removed and all the young ones that are weak. With Schaffer and Columbia, the new growth should be nipped when it attains a growth of 18 inches, in order that a bushy growth may develop.

Feed for Growing Pigs.

Growing pigs may be fed a mixture of corn or cornmeal seven or eight parts, and tankage two or three parts.
As the pigs mature the tankage may be diminished until it occupies about one-tenth of the ration.

Kohl-Rabi Plants.

Sow seed of kohl-rabi as soon as possible in fine, well-prepared soil.
Sow in rows and thin the plants to stand eight inches apart.

FRESH AIR REQUIRED

OXYGEN IS DOUBLY IMPORTANT
DURING THE NIGHT.

Many Advantages Seen in Use of Open Front House—Scratching Shed Is Kept Dry During Wet Weather—Hens Keep Clean.

How it ever came to happen that chickens came to be confined in small, close, ill-ventilated houses during the long hours of night, it is hard to imagine.

Perhaps it was the result of man's effort to domesticate the wild fowls.
He had to make many changes in the habits of the birds, and it was natural for him to do so along the lines of his convenience and in imitation of his own conditions.

If he and his family spent the night indoors with as little fresh air as possible admitted into the rooms, why was not that the proper plan to pursue with his hens?

Oxygen is needed even more at night than in the daytime, and a chicken's night is a long affair, especially during the winter time, when it goes to bed at 4:30, and is up at 6:30 or 7
a. m. So if fresh air is important, it certainly is doubly so at night, and the open houses provide for this very nicely.

There are many kinds of fresh air houses in use at the present time;
those that have a canvas or burlap curtain are not truly open-front houses, except when the curtain is withdrawn.

The best open-front is covered with wire netting on one side or at least the greater part of one side. The open side should face the south, so as to admit the sunshine as well as the fresh air.

As this is the storm side, the end of the house occupied by the roosts should have a canvas frame fitted over the upper part, leaving all the rest of the front that is occupied by the scratching pen, etc., open to the weather, as the protecting eaves or slanting roofs are sufficient to keep out the rain and excess of sunshine.

The advantages of this way of housing chickens are many, and it provides a well-ventilated scratching shed, which is a big item during the winter, and a more even temperature during all seasons of the year.

During wet and muddy weather, the scratching shed, which remains dry, prevents the fowls from bringing mud into the nest boxes on their feet, and dirty eggs do not bring as ready a sale as the clean ones, and washed eggs lose their gloss, and that outer film from the shell, which admits the air more freely to the inner part of the shell, causing it to spoil more readily.

The open-front houses remain comparatively dry during the wet weather, and frost never accumulates on the inside, so that litter remains dry for a long time, and droppings are more easily cleaned. There is no danger of the fowls taking cold as one would seem to fear. Such troubles come from impure air, produced by long dampness or draughts.

The pure air gives them resisting power against roup, throat or similar troubles, as it adds to their vigor.
These houses are now being tried in places where the weather is very severe in the wintertime, and no bad results have yet been reported.

PLOWING IS OF IMPORTANCE

Upon It Depends to Great Degree Nature of Later Operations—Money and Labor Saved.

Plowing, though seemingly a simple process, is easily the most important operation in the tillage of the soil.
Upon it depend to a great degree the nature of later operations and the frequency with which they will be required. In fact, unless land is plowed in the best manner possible, and at the right time, the preparation of the land for growing a crop will require additional labor and cost. It may even be impossible to prepare a good seed bed, or to plow under certain weeds, or to kill the weeds which have escaped with the crop.

Ten Trips To Mammoth Cave

To Be Awarded Ladies of Hopkinsville and Christian and Adjoining Counties By HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN. Any Lady May Enter This Subscription Contest Without Cost, and In a Few Weeks Possess a Touring Car.

Contest Starts at Once and Closes Saturday Aug. 15

With this issue the Kentuckian announces the full details of the most liberal subscription contest ever offered by a newspaper of this section. The competition is open to every lady, married or single, or girls of any age and all are invited to compete for the prizes. The contest will last only a few weeks and at the end of the time some one will be awarded a handsome touring car without cost, and for just a little effort in letting her friends know she is a candidate in the contest. Ten others will compose a jolly party to Mammoth Cave, one of the greatest wonders of the world. Don't spend much time contemplating. Just send in your name or that of some friend at once and earn more than $500 in a few weeks. The contest will be conducted along the same fair and impartial lines that have characterized other contests by the paper, and all are assured courteous and fair treatment at all times.

SEND IN YOUR NAME TO-DAY.

Who May Enter The Contest

Any lady, married or single, of any age, of good character may enter the contest and win one of the handsome prizes, without one penny of cost. On this page will be found blank nomination blanks, cut out and fill in your own name or that of a friend, and send to the Kentuckian office to-day, and get started at once as an early start means success more certain.

Contestants must enter the contest in the district in which they reside, but may secure subscriptions anywhere, regardless of district limitations. You do not have to be a subscriber to nominate a candidate. You can nominate yourself or a friend without cost. Just clip the nomination blank, on this page, fill in the name of the person you wish to nominate and send it to this office.

Office of The Contest Manager

The contest is in charge of an experienced and competent contest manager. His office is at the Kentuckian office, and those who are thinking of entering the contest should call at this office at once, or telephone the contest manager and a representative will call to see you. The contest manager will be glad to advise you at any time as to the best method of securing one of the handsome prizes.

How Votes Can Be Secured.

No votes will be sold, and can only be secured by gathering up the free vote coupons and by securing subscriptions to the Kentuckian. The number of votes allowed with subscriptions is published herewith.

Division of Districts

In order to equalize the distribution of trips the territory covered by the Kentuckian has been divided into three districts as follows:

DISTRICT NO. 1—All of the city of Hopkinsville.

DISTRICT NO. 2—All of the territory out-side of Hopkinsville, East of the L. & N. Railroad, north of Hopkinsville and East of the T. C. Railroad South of Hopkinsville.

DISTRICT NO. 3—All of the territory outside of the city of Hopkinsville West of the L. & N. Railroad North of Hopkinsville, and West of the T. C. Railroad South of Hopkinsville.

One trip each will be allowed the three highest contestants in each district, and the one receiving the highest number of votes after the Automobile has been awarded will be permitted to name a suitable chaperone to accompany the party to Mammoth Cave. All expenses of the trips will be paid by the Kentuckian, and everything will be done to make this a most pleasant trip for those who compose the party of ten.

The Ford Touring Car will be awarded the lady receiving the highest number in the entire contest, regardless of where she may reside. The Car was purchased of the Ideal Motor Co., on Main street and will be on display during the contest at this Garage. Those interested are invited to call and see the Car.

The contest manager reserves the right to reject any nomination for cause and to decide any question that may arise and his decision shall be final.

In the event of a tie, prizes of equal value will be awarded those tying.
